Rules about what to wear to college

We want to make sure all learners are treated equally and with respect.

We want to make sure learners beliefs and backgrounds are respected.

We also must make sure we follow health and safety rules.

These rules are based on a law called The Equality Act 2010.

We want to make sure:

- All learners are treated well,
- All learners can do their best,

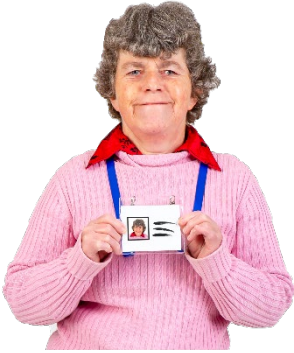

- All learners can get involved in college activities,

- Learners feel good about themselves. And respect each other,
- We work with students and support them.

The college will:

- Make systems that help us identify who our learners are. So we can keep people safe and follow exam rules.

- Make sure our systems think about our learners' beliefs. For example, making sure our policies think about things people wear for their religious beliefs.

- Make systems that help make sure that our learners do not wear clothing that might be upsetting to others.

- Make plans about health and safety and wearing protective clothing.

- Makes sure everyone knows about our rules and plans so they can follow them.

- Help make everyone understands people's religion and beliefs. And the needs of people. We will do this through things like staff training, posters, and tutorials.

- Make sure we write down any issues so we can check we have dealt with them in the right way.

- Check our rules and plans to make sure they are up to date.

All staff must:

- Treat learners with respect,

- Know about our rules for what to wear to college and how to deal with any issues,

- Keep information private when needed,

- Share information with other staff when needed,

- Take part in training about these issues.

Learners must:

- Take part in induction and tutorials about these issues,

- Follow these rules and our plans,

- Tell us what they think about the rules and plans.
